

Test Optional Details for Colorado's Four-Year Colleges and Universities

Institution:	How to Inform Institution if You will Submit Test Scores or Not	Advice on Submitting Test Scores	Test Scores Required for Scholarships?
Adams State University	Question on admission application.	Encouraged to send test scores if GPA is below the 50% mid-range and for class placement.	Test scores not considered at all for scholarships.
Colorado College	Question on admission application.	Test scores not given much weight in admission decision, so up to applicant.	Applicants will be considered for scholarships with or without test scores.
Colorado Mesa University	No notification needed.	Test scores not given much weight in admission decision, so up to applicant.	Applicants will be considered for scholarships with or without test scores.
Colorado School of Mines	Question on admission application.	Submit if test scores meet or are above the 50% mid-range published by CDHE.	Applicants will be considered for scholarships with or without test scores.
Colorado State University - Fort Collins	Question on admission application.	Test scores not given much weight in admission decision, so up to applicant.	Applicants will be considered for scholarships with or without test scores.
Colorado State University Global	No notification needed.	Test scores not given much weight in admission decision, so up to applicant.	Test scores not considered at all for scholarships.
Colorado State University Pueblo	Question on admission application.	Test scores may help some students; however, if their scores are below the 50% mid-range published by CDHE, they will have minimum positive impact. Students with cumulative GPAs above 3.0 and strong recent academic history generally do not need to submit scores to improve their application.	Most scholarships do not require test scores but some do.
Fort Lewis College	Question on admission application.	Test scores not given much weight in admission decision, so up to applicant.	Test scores not considered at all for scholarships.
MSU Denver	Question on admission application.	Submit if test scores meet or are above the 50% mid-range published by CDHE.	Test scores not considered at all for scholarships.
Regis University	No notification needed.	Test scores not given much weight in admission decision, so up to applicant.	Test scores not considered at all for scholarships.
University of Colorado Boulder	Question on admission application.	Our holistic application review includes your high school GPA, course rigor, grades, letter of recommendation, and essay questions. If you believe your test scores will strengthen your academic record, we will accept self-reported ACT/SAT scores from your application, or official scores from the testing agency.	Test scores not considered at all for scholarships.
University of Colorado Colorado Springs	No notification needed.	Test scores not given much weight in admission decision, so up to applicant.	Applicants will be considered for scholarships with or without test scores.

University of Colorado Denver	Question on admission application.	Test scores not given much weight in admission decision, so up to applicant.	Test scores not considered at all for scholarships.
University of Denver	Question on admission application.	Test scores for some students accurately reflect their academic abilities and might even give a more complete picture of achievement and potential. If your test score is at or above the middle 50% of admitted students to DU, you may want to consider submitting.	Applicants will be considered for scholarships with or without test scores.
University of Northern Colorado	Question on admission application.	Submit if test scores meet or are above the 50% mid-range published by CDHE.	Most scholarships do not require test scores but some do.
Western Colorado University	No notification needed.	If students feel that their test scores will support their application, they should notify us via email that they would like to submit them.	Most scholarships do not require test scores but some do.